What a wonderful couple you and Earl made! I think you were just meant for each other. Many happy times we spent together. May you find comfort in knowing your dear one is safe in the memory of God who will remember every detail about him and bring him back again. John 5:28-29. Earl is no longer concerned with the cares of this world.

Maybe 12 years ago I volunteered to lead a bible study class with 15-20 senior adults. Ages maybe 60-90! All women!! Sweet, seasoned, well informed, wise in Bible knowledge. Awesome ladies .They collectively beat me up weekly with their mature biblical knowledge. One day, I saw a set of eyes looking through the window on the the door and waved him to come on in. It was the one and only MR. Earl! He looked around at all those ladies,and gave me a wink as if to say, Hey, I can handle this!! He joined in and was soon to become one of the best friends a man could have and bailed me out big time by having another man in the house! His time in class was short , Mr. Earl had tough health problems, some very painful. I started to visit him at his home and thoroughly enjoyed our time together. His wife Jennie took such good care of him through years of health issues. I've been very blessed to know them. Mr.Earl will always be in my heart and is one of the most honest, sincere friends a man could have. Straight shooter loves the Lord.He told me once, in one of my darkest moments in life, Jesus still loves me and forgives me, even though I couldn't forgive myself. Thank you Lord, for putting Mr.Earl and Jennie in my life. Prayers and Peace
