“ To my loving husband, I will miss you until we are together again in heaven. God, you and I know how much we loved each other and how I was the only one who stood by you up until the end. It almost killed me when you died and your family tried to finish me off by taking everything we had together not even leaving me with anything to remember you by. They are happy that I am alone and homeless thanks to them. I dont know how such a loving man came from such an evil family. God bless you my sweet poohbear. Love always, your bunny
