“ Has it really been almost 10 years already? I miss you still papaw. I hope you're doing well in heaven and I hope you're proud of me. I'm not much of a Christian or church-goer anymore but I still pray with hopes that you can hear me. I'll always remember the long weekends, sleepovers, and days after soccer practice. I still slow down whenever I pass your chair in the kitchen, half expecting you to wrap me up in a hug before I can pass by. I still remember everything; the good things, the bad things. The serious talks, you helping me with my math homework, you teaching me to play solitaire (I still can't play right), playing go-fish, the many sunburns that required aloe vera from out back, the times that your kids (my mom included) had a few to many and we told them all about it the next day. Sometimes it's really hard to look back on my early childhood because all of it involves you. You were the core of the first 10 years of my life and I wouldn't trade it for the world. I love you, thank you for giving me the strength to always keep going.

“ You will be missed, dad. I never got the chance to really know you and we never got a chance to go fishing together (I know you wanted to take me out on a fishing trip). You are the first person that I could ever call dad, and I will greatly miss all the things you could have taught me. I promise you though, that I will take great care of your daughter Elizabeth, and I that I will love her forever. I love and miss you, dad. And I will keep the memory of you with me forever

“ I prayed that my brother could let me know somehow that we all would be ok without him here with us, this is the message i received, I must go leave you for a little while, Please do not not grieve and shed wild tears, and hug your sorrow to you through the years, but start out bravely with a smile, and for my sake and in my name, live on and do all things the the same. feed not your loneliness on empty days, but feel each waking hour in useful ways, reach out your hand in comfort and in cheer, and i in turn , will comfort you and hold you near, and never, never, be afraid to die for i am waiting for you in the sky. other then Jesus Christ he is the greatest man that i have ever known, my brother BOBBY SIMMONS!

“ Linda, Dave, Annie, Elizabeth, Greg...I truly have no words. He was one of the best. I actually to this day attribute him as being the person who sat me down, and talked to me in a way that he knew i wasnt just hearing his words but truly listening to his words. It was his words that got me to straighten up, return to school and be the person I am today. For that I will always be grateful. Its been a few years since Ive been home or spent time with you all but please know that I love you all very deeply and wish I could be there with you. But please remember these words spoken to me by Bobby after I lost my own dad a few years back, he told me that it was ok to cry because I missed him but to smile because I knew that we would be together again one day.

“ Bob, The Man, The Myth, The Legend... This statement is so true and perfect for a man whom I had the honor of becoming his daughter-n-law. He was a God fearing man full of love, honor, and compassion. Heaven received one of our best. He is and will always be missed. I love you papaw and wish I could have one more of those great big hugs.
