Her maternal grandparents were Nathan J. and Sevenah Trowell, the founders of Umatilla. Carolyn graduated from Umatilla High School where she lettered in basketball and was a cheerleader; she then attended Stetson University from Carnegie institute. Carolyn worked for many years and many doctors as a lab technician. She was very loved by her colleagues and patients. Carolyn worked for Dr. Taylor for 12 years and he and his office were a tremendous comfort to her and her family.
