“ Although separated by long distance, "Uncle Charlie" always maintained a keen interest in the education and subsequent careers of all his nieces and nephews here in England. We were so proud to have an uncle who had forged a new life and career in, firstly, Canada, then in the USA at a time when international travel and emigration were relatively rare. He was a great believer in the benefits of education and learning and took huge delight in our academic achievements. We are so grateful that he found the companionship and support of his wife, Gloria, and never more so as his health declined. We are also eternally grateful to his American friends, colleagues and neighbours who, over his long lifetime, enabled him to have such a fulfilling and rewarding life in your country. We thank you all. There is so much more that could be said but I leave this message with the simple end: God bless Uncle Charlie; God bless Gloria and God bless America. From: Nick Moseley (Nephew): Lichfield, England
