“ March 19, 2015 Today I received through the mail the return of the birthday card I sent to Charlie for his 77th birthday marked "not deliverable". His phone number is no longer in service. He was my cousin, just short of 4 1/2 years older than myself. I remember him as a handsome older boy, always with a sunny smile. We spoke several times in the last two years and I regret that I missed the chance to see him in person before it was no longer possible. My best wishes go to his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren and their families.

“ Our Dear Uncle Charles, your loving Father, Grand-father, Great-grandfather, and Brother will live forever in our hearts! Oh, how we loved this wonderful man! What incredible memories we will always have to treasure. For this, we are eternally grateful. So, until we meet again, may you rest in peace with the love of your life, our very dear Aunt Claire, and all of our other loved ones, whom we are sure are welcoming you with open arms. Heaven just received a very special angel! We will love you forever! All of our love to you, Denise, Chuckie, Tricia, Bobby, Matthew, and your entire family. Xoxo

“ It is still surreal that this has happened. You were the grandpa with nine lives. You always beat the odds. You always surprised everyone! It saddens me to think we won't here your laughs or stories this holiday season. You taught me so many lessons in life. We had many ups and downs. The one thing our family has always had is unconditional love. I m so blessed you were able to celebrate my wedding and meet your great grandchildren. They loved you so much. You were a fantastic poppop. They loved your tootsie rolls, goofy presents, and just watching t.v. with you. You are going to be missed more then words can begin to explain but like your last word "you will always ALWAYS be in my heart." I love you and miss you. I hope your dancing high in the sky with mommom and telling her stories about everything we have done in the past 7 years. All my love till we see each other again! we love you!!
