“ There is so much to say....my mother in law...my guide....the family rock....but most of all my friend. I miss you so much already. You gave words of wisdom, wonderful ideas, and love. I see you in the ornaments on our Christmas tree, a tree that was once very bare now holds so many of your crafted ornaments made with your loving and devoted care. You always made a fuss over all your crafting being out when we came to visit....but it is a memory in my mind that I hold dear to my heart, the sewing machine and things you were making all over the table. Conversations that were long but always good and always made me think. You were one of the richest women I have ever known....not by means of money but wealth in knowledge, love and respect. You have made a powerful impression in my heart and how much everyone misses you is even more powerful. Such a great lady. I know that this time on earth is short and you impressed upon me that the little things in life mean the most and that those little things should be embraced and cherished (though I have a hard time listening sometimes...I am working on that) There is no goodbyes.....see you later in Heaven...I love you and miss you "MA".
