Obituary of Evan Romberg

Evan was a man who loved life, his family, his friends, his wife and his children. He was so devoted and would go out of his way to help others if he could. He had a childlike character and sense of humor in him, which brought out the children in all of us. He reminded us to enjoy life and not always take it so seriously.

He had an unmatched determination and will that led him to overcome many obstacles in life. That determination was the foundation of his successes in his career. He began as a chartered accountant in Toronto. He then found a passion for law. Evan and his family moved to Florida and where he earned a juris doctor degree from Nova Southeastern University. While studying he was awarded for his work on a publication in his field. He and his family then moved to Arizona where he began his career as a public defender. This career choice along with numerous awards for volunteer work in the community were illustrative of Evan's passion for giving back.

Later in life Evan struggled from mental illness due in part to unforeseen health circumstances. His family has created a memorial page to spread awareness of the severity of mental illness, and the need to seek help.

Evan's sense of humor, love, and determination lives on in his children.

“ It is with a heavy heart to have heard today about the passing of my cousin Evan. While it has been several years since I last spoke with him and even longer since I had last seen him, it does not seem long ago that I remember his wedding to Sari, the birth of his boys, and the happy memories, that involved our fathers family and our Bubie, to whose apartment we always congregated in the afternoon during Yom Kippur across from the Kielcer Shul that our fathers, Zaide and great uncles had attended along with our Bubie. My deepest condolences to Corey, Jesse, Liana, and Sari.
