“ Personally know how difficult this is for you and I am so sorry for the hurt that each and everyone is experiencing. However know that the memories and the life that live in each of you will be a part of your dear Mom. You will experience many remember when's. . . And you will shed many tears. But remember there is one thing that will never change and that is the loved she had for all. Rest in Peace my dear friend and continue to watch over and keep all that were so very close to you safe.

“ A Brother / Sister's Love A brother / sister's love is special in oh so many ways Now miles stretch between us and minutes turn to days. We've shared so much as children the tears, the joys, the pain A lifetime spent together those memories remain. In times gone by we've pondered the paths our lives have taken Knowing that in spite of this our love has unshaken. Our love is special in ways that are unspoken Still that binding force exists our brother / sister's love unbroken. From your little brother Jimmy who loves you and will miss u. I will never forget you because you will always be in my heart. I love you big sis, hugs and kisses

“ A long long time ago, it must have been 1978, my friend Evelyn planted a garden. It was her first garden and she made many many mistakes. But she trudged on in her garden. She started with a plant named Richie, she stayed with that plant every day. She so loved that plant. To her garden, every year she added new things learning more and more as she went. She started adding this stuff called love. Sure some days she watered too much, or too little sunshine, any number of mistakes any new gardener might make. But she kept trying, adding new plants all the time. First she added a Cynthia, what a beauty that turned out to be. From that first one, the roots were planted firmly in the soil. They must have spread because other flowers just started popping up. There was a Julia, she sure grew strong with such pretty colors of character. And then grew an Amber. My friend worked so hard to protect that one. Supported on all sides until she could establish her own independent roots in the garden. I think my friend must have been ecstatic as she watched in her garden as this one bloomed. What inner beauty. She must have really loved gardening because she worked on it all the time. Along the edge was a Richelle, what a gentle flower that one is. So much love. What a beautiful garden it is. One of those natural beauties of life that take your breath away. I'm so glad my friend found something she loved so much. She kept tending that garden for a lifetime of years. Years later the gardener passed on as death is a part of life. But recently God blessed me with the opportunity to visit my friend's beautiful garden. My how it has grown. Even though I couldn't see her tending or watering her garden, I knew she was there. So if you are reading this, and you get the lucky chance to see my friend's beautiful garden, stop for just a minute. I know you are all busy, but just stop for a moment and sprinkle that miracle grow called love and keep her garden thriving. You all know I am here for you. If this makes you cry, thank you for watering her garden. May God bless you all and keep you safe. Love always, Aunt Kim
