“ We were freshmen together, and alphabetically linked, so that he always sat in the seat in front of me, He was a swashbuckler of a guy who was the center of attention, good looking, and didn't take any crap from anyone. In a book written by Janie Horan Smith (pen name Baker), she recollected an incident of their daily bus commute to New London from Stonington when he very aggressively settled an argument and became her hero for life. I just saw notification of his passing on the school website, and it brought back many good memories of "Topsy.”

“ Our memories of meeting Mac in preparation for Tom and Kelly's wedding were the jokes that he told. He was one that always had a quick comment and a one liner to bring smiles and entertainment to those in his company. When the grandchildren began coming, he had little magic tricks and funny puns to share. He will be missed by his family!
