“ On this Christmas Day I am remembering my Uncle Hugh, a figure in my life since early childhood. And in recent years he was not only an uncle, but a friend and confidant. I will miss our shared conversations as we remembered people and events from our family's history -- sometimes with sadness and often with joy and laughter.

I will always remember him as a good person; a thoughtful person. And someone who was willing to share his thoughts and beliefs, and to listen to and discuss my thoughts and beliefs respectfully, even if they were different from his. I always looked forward to sharing time with him when I was in Florida. My life is richer for having known him.
