“ *To my dad's beloved wife, Irene,
I wanted to share a thought of some of the times we shared together in good times.
I remember we used to ride in your convertible Ford falcon. We both were dressed to the tee. Riding with the wind blowing through our long hair. I was around 17 and you were real young too. I remember those days as the fun times we had. Going swimming at Mason's hole. Cleaning houses together.
I know many things were not always right between us. But the times that were, meant the most to me. Those are the times I want to remember.
And I know you went on and you're suffering is now over. But I will hold on to those moments that I remembered the dearest.
You will not be forgotten by me.*
