“ Jim, a dear friend, for almost 40 yrs. We had a lot in common, maybe that's how we became friends. We worked together at NASA, we were engineers, we were involved in the US moon landing, we both taught college in the evenings, and were interested in real estate and we liked to tip a few beers after work on Fridays. In 1978 we became partners in a real estate venture, that partnership still exists today. Jim was the brains of that activity, as proven by a comparison of the results of our separate real estate ventures. We both played high school sports, its funny what you remember, but he told me he could dunk a basketball and I couldn't. We got into golf in the later years. On a visit to the Villages we played together. I was really a novice, using for the first time a set of golf clubs that my kids bought me when I retired. When I got to his house he told me my shirt was no good, so he gave me one of his collared shirts. I thought he was kidding. Later during our round , which I was playing badly , I told him my irons were fraying, and blamed my kids for getting me such a cheap set. Jim couldn't stop laughing when he realized I never removed the clear plastic coverings from the new set. We never talked too much about the hereafter but he said he was happy with his life and was content to go when it was his time. I hope when I go I have the courage to face it the way he did. Good bye old friend, I hope I get to go to the same place you will surely go.

“ My heart is truly saddened with the loss of James N. Scott, Jim to his friends. As a long time friend, -- over 40 years -- I am happy that he is now in a painless, peaceful place. I hope that he and my also departed husband, Jerry, meet again. They would surely have a lot of stories to tell, to smile about, to laugh about and to cry about and maybe even to have a drink or two. Jim had a slow Midwestern humor that you would feel like saying, come on Jim get it out, ♦ and when he did get it out, you couldn't stop laughing. He would be laughing with you. He was a proud man and a deep thinker. He was a serious Federal Government worker who loved his country. He loved his wife and his children. He loved his extended families and his many friends. Over the years, he loved his different homes and took special care of every one of them as well as his yards. He loved playing golf, playing bridge and playing on his boat. He loved people and people loved him. I feel proud that he was my friend. My heart goes out to Jane, Lisa, Steven and Julie and all of Jim's grandchildren. I wish that I could be there to give each and every one of you a great big hug. My love to all, Irene (Mrs. Jerry T. Moore)

“ In fourth grade I was required to produce a report and I chose to write on NASA. My parents suggested I write a letter to Uncle Jim for some information. I can't remember the exact assignment, but I've never forgotten is the wonderful, handwritten letter I received from my uncle and the envelope packed with NASA stickers and patches. Boy, did that made me feel important! Needless to say, I immediately affixed the letter and most of the stickers and patches into my report with pride. Our hearts go out to the entire family. We'll miss you, Jim.

“ Dear Mrs. Scott and Family, I was deeply saddened to learn of Jim's passing. I worked for Jim as a contractor from 1990 until he retired. Jim was a man of the highest integrity, expecting the best from the people who worked with him. He was fair and always very supportive. It was a joy to work with him. My deepest sympathy to you and your family on your loss, Jack Miller

“ Dear Jane, I was shocked to read in the Goddard Retiree News that Jim had passed away last August 20. Please accept both Kaye's and my condolences for your loss. We hope you are doing well. I feel so bad that I hadn't kept in touch with Him more frequently. There just seemed to be plenty of time. It seems like yesterday when I would frequently join Jim's "lunch bunch" for lunch. (Now I'm wondering how Tony Grandi and Charlie Uvaas are faring. Jim was a special person. He was an excellent engineer who did not push his skill, knowledge and expertise on those around him, or for that matter, on Goddard management. As a result, I never thought the management realized--or maybe even cared--how really good he was. Ever. I remember how reluctant he was to accept the job as Goddard's Frequency Manager because it seemed to be something of a come-down for him technically. And actually it was. But he threw himself into the job and I believe he was the best Frequency Manager Goddard ever had. (He certainly stood head and shoulders over the one he replaced.) NASA Headquarters obviously realized what a jewel he was because when he threatened to quit the job, they moved heaven and earth to get him the promotion that should have originally come with the position. I never knew what he did that gained such solid NASA Headquarters support, but I'm sure he helped them immensely in their fights with the Air Force and others. Jane, I hope you know that those of us from the old Requirements and Plans Office who are still left are going to miss Jim.
