“ Several years ago Jack made a phone call that impacted our lives. His family was visiting and the air conditioner stopped working. The company Hank worked for was called to look at the problem. Hank went over, got the unit running, and returned two weeks later on his own to make sure everything was OK. Jack and Jen were very appreciative. They even sent Hank home with some homemade jam. They formed a fast friendship, and I met them shortly after. Since then, we have shared many happy times together. Whoever met Jack wanted to be his friend. His family became part of our family. Our time with Jack was too short, but we feel blessed that we had the good fortune to meet him several years ago. That phone call was the start of a wonderful relationship. So as we bid farewell to our dear friend, Hank and I want to say, "Jack, thanks for calling." We will miss him dearly.
