“ It's hard to feel bad when someone lives 94 years, yet I do. I met Joe somewhere around 1960 and knew immediately that he was a unique person. The world will be a lesser person without hi.

“ Condolences to the family of Joseph Persaud. He will be missed by all of us. Uncle Joe was an inspiration to me. He was not only my oldest family descendant alive but a friend and mentor to me. Uncle Joe left British Guiana before I was born. I heard about him through my dad who was his nephew and best friend while growing up. Uncle Joe told me many stories about his life growing up and almost fifty years after he left British Guiana, I found him and from that day we had a close family bond. I spoke to him a few days before his death not knowing that would be our last conversation. He was excited in publishing his book "Ramblings" at age 94 and told me that I would be the first to get a copy from and indeed I received a copy before his funeral. The gates of heaven are open for Uncle Joe as he had chosen for the cover of his final book "Ramblings". He told me that he was ready to go whenever the lord ready for him. He is in a better place now. Farewell Uncle Joe, you will be always remembered. We will miss you. RIP.

“ To: The Family of Joseph Persaud - I know how tough it is losing a father, a mentor and someone like your father who was as caring and loving as he was. My father passed suddenly in 2003 in an auto accident. I lost my business partner and my best friend in the blink of an eye without warning. Your broken hearts will start to heal with time and the best parts of what your father passed on to your family while he was here with us - and his spirit - will still be there to guide you and fill your lives and heart with warmth and happiness. I will never forget your father - and truly miss him as well. My deepest sympathy and condolences to you all - Scott

“ It is not a secret as to what a great man Joe was. Many times I've stated how I feel as though I "hit the jackpot" with my husbands family. Joe lived his life by example, and I will always be grateful for the influence he's had on myself and countless others. He will be missed until we meet again, and he will be loved forever.
