“Granny, it's an understatement to say, but I'm going to miss you. You were an amazing woman and I was always excited to spend time with you. Some of my best childhood memories involved driving to Florida to stay at your house. You were there when I graduated high school and college. You were there when I married my wife, Cornelia. If you'd been able you would have been there to hold my son Kane. You made me feel special and loved. Even though the last time I visited you was short you still made me a feast! I spent the evening talking with you. You made me feel welcomed and I'll never forget it. I didn't call you enough, but our talks were always special. I know it's a small detail, but it's the thing I'll miss the most: you ended every call with "I love you, sugar". It always made me smile. I wish you'd been able to see Kane, but cancer doesn't care about what you want. I'm going to miss you granny. You're no longer in pain. Apparently you were worried that we'd forget you- that is impossible.
