“ Sweet Shawn, I know there is and will be a void in your life. God, your family, and your friends will help fill this emptiness in your heart, in time. As time goes by part of the sorrow will fade and a smile will return as you sense a familiar moment in time, or a particular place that will rush a warm remembrance of Matt to your soul. Cling to the memories that you and Matt made together these 14 years. Remember you are loved. God bless.

“ Shawn as you say your last goodbye to the love of your life, your husband, your best friend. and the father of you precious girls. I pray for the lord to wrap his arms ever so tightly around you, carrying you through this painful heartbreak and then finally placing you down on the other side full of peace and strength and love. I pray that his sweet mercy and the warmth of his love will abound you. Know you are loved and admired by so many for your strength and grace throughout this horrific tragedy. Lean on those that love you and those who will help pick up the pieces to your broken heart.
