“ Dear Dad, As Thanksgiving gets closer memories of holiday times with our family come flooding to my mind. I remember how much love and care went into the preparation and how we always had two kinds of corn because you liked the creamed kind best. How we always had to "take little bites". How I always selected the "best spoon" for you to use for your coffee. How you liked my scrambled eggs. Strange how so many memories revolve around food. But that's what I remember...you were the provider, the rock, steady, dependable, easy-going, pleasant, fair and loving. This Thanksgiving, as always, I thank God with all my heart for allowing me the privilege of being your daughter. You were respected and loved and appreciated for who you were; your patience and kindness, your loyalty and your tolerance...All these things I learned from you...and can only pray that I make you as proud of me as I have always been of you. I miss you....so very much, but I will be at peace knowing you are in the arms of our Heavenly Father, God of all and that we will see each other again, one day. I love you Daddy, Lois.
