Throughout his teenage years Rod worked on the nearby farms of his aunts and uncles, where he developed a fascination with machinery and mechanical motion. Farm work also endued Rod with construction and “handyman” skills that served him well throughout his life. In 1950 Rod began his college years at California State Teacher’s College in California, PA, where he met his future bride. He graduated from Penn State in 1954 with a BS in mechanical engineering. He belonged to the Theta Chi social fraternity, and to the Tau Beta Pi and Pi Tau Sigma Honorary Engineering fraternities.

Late in 1958, Rod left the Air Force and returned to Union Carbide, working in various engineering and management positions until he retired in 1991.

As a Union Carbide employee, Rod was transferred frequently, living in Pennsylvania, New York, Kansas, Texas, New Jersey, Illinois, Ohio, and California, where he retired. After retirement, Rod and Janet relocated to Lake of the Pines in the foothills of the Sierra Mountains. In 2005 they relocated to The Villages in Florida.
