“ Well it's now almost 7 years since you left us. A peice of me died that day. A peice nobody even realizes is missing. You've been on my mind alot lately I get depressed and cry for you.. sometimes it feels like the wait of the world is on my shoulders sure wish you were here to call for advise..I miss you mama more than you'll ever know.I've learn to cope with you being gone ..but I'll never be the same without you.all the grandkids are so grown up, mister is a big mister now and a royal pain he is the spitting image of you right down to his stanking attitude. He misses you too.we all do. Went through your purse for the first time and found so many letters,poems,toys of misters broke me down .so much random items in there now I know where I inherited my hoarding.lol. we love and miss you mom not a faggots by that we don't think of you.continue to rest easy until we meet again. Forever loving you!

“ I am very sad that my sister Sally passed away so young but I'm sure she was loved by her family and comforted by them in her illness. I know she is at peace with her mother and father in a better place. I regret that we had so little contact after she left St. Petersburg but I send my condolences to her children and her ex husband, Ernie.
