“ I just found out about Scott's passing. I am so very sorry for your loss. Scott had been a great friend to me when I was going to LSCC back in 2006-2008. He helped me so much with chemistry and even tutored my daughter in her chemistry class a few years later. I so hate to hear that he is no longer with us. He was so kind, so brilliant, and so entertaining. I'm sure he's missed by so many. Prayers for his wife, son, and entire family.

“ One skill Scott brought to his work in the science department was his encyclopedic knowledge of pop culture. In a department full of aging Boomers, Scott was our "go-to guy" for anything concerning science fiction and fantasy movies and TV shows, comic books and graphic novels, Dungeons and Dragons, video games, and all issues concerning "nerd culture." When we needed someone to translate student cultural references for us, we always asked Scott. And he always knew the answers to our questions, or knew how to find out. He will be irreplaceable.

“ My condolences to the family. When loosing a loved one it can be unbearable. That is why God has provided scriptures in the Bible to help ones cope with the loss. In the Bible book of Isaiah 25:8 Jehovah God promises soon to "swallow up death forever." He also promises to bring back those who have fallen asleep in death (Acts 24:15). In a little while longer this kind of pain will be a thing of the past (Revelations 21:4). May these scriptures bring you comfort in this difficult time (jw.org)
