“ There are two things I think of when I thikn of "grandpa". First, he served his country for a very long time and for that, no matter what else, I admired him. Second, I will never forget one of the first times I met the man that many called, "Sarge". It was at Jon & Glenda's house, and I think it may have been a shower or Jon's retirement party. Anyway, I was trying my absolute best to treat him with respect and kindness. As he sat on the couch and finished his beer, I asked if he wanted me to get him another. He said, "Yes, please." When I came back with a cold Bud, he thanked me. I asked him if I could open it for him and he quipped, "I'm not TOO old for that yet!!" and then we both had a big, long laugh. May he rest in peace.

“ My sister and brother and I were so lucky to have grandpa and grandma live in Florida for a time. They were always so willing to look after us when our parents needed a break. Grandpa and I usually swapped some interesting terms of endearment like mellon head. Interestingly, mellon head was Grandpa's name for me, even in high school. Grandpa also had an affinity for scaring Ligeia, Dexter, and myself. I remember a particular incident with a blue crab from their canal. I won't go into details :) But grandpa always loved a good laugh and I sincerely hope he's laughing right now. Always in my prayers. Hilary
