“ I know you are in a better place now, no more pain, no more sorrow. I miss you so much, but I have comfort in knowing I will see you again one day. You'll have to show me all the new fishing spots you've found. I hope you were as proud of me as I was of you. Until we meet again, I Love you Daddy!

“ My sincere condolences to the Parker family. I hope knowing that God cares for you and sees your pain brings you comfort during this difficult time. May you also find comfort in God's promise to resurrect our loved ones to life on a paradise earth. (John 5:28, Revelation 21:3 & 4) My deepest sympathy to you all.

“ Until we become one again David, our dear brother in Christ, beloved family member, and friend. I lament your loss as now, it has become our loss. You are now in eternity with the divine creator and all those, who have gone before you to illuminate the pathway. I will always remember you, your wife and son. I recall you saying once, that in this life, we must dive into it and most assuredly, we will swim out the other side. It was a privilege to have known you and for you and your family to be a part of all our lives. It doesn't matter whether one lives but one day or a hundred years... All that matters is that we lived and shared in the divine plan because some things, as it turns out, really are worth the wait. This is not good-bye but rather, where you leave the rest of us in the story. All of our sparkles shine a little less now that you are gone from here however, we find comfort in knowing you are in eternity and that our sparkles will shine brightly once again when we meet again. Our prayers will always be with your family. I only pray that the rest of us come to understand that our own passing will be much the same as our births because, in both instances, we come forth from darkness into the light to all those who, have been awaiting our arrival and to those, who love us.
